

Tom and Clare Mansmann, of Pacific Farms Incorporated in Middleburg, VA, have competed through the Advanced and CCI 3* levels of Eventing. They retain a strong background in Dressage, as well as competitive experience across disciplines, including Cutting and Ranch Riding. Their farm focuses on correct fundamentals for horse and rider, offering training and lessons for both.

Amanda Cousins, of Ashland Equestrian, LLC in Warrenton, VA, has a strong background in Hunters and Jumpers, but trains across disciplines as a well-rounded coach and rider. She has managed several barns on the east coast, as well as coached riding teams in many leagues and championships. She is now the head coach and manager in Warrenton, offering training, lessons, and board.

Pacific Farms and Ashland Equestrian joined forces after meeting through the Retired Racehorse Project. Their combined love for horsemanship and correct riding, the Thoroughbred horse, and their faith in Christ has inspired a collaborative effort to help riders grow effective and positive communication with their horses in their Position Matters Clinic Series.
